Proper Dress for Dancing Fashion's Decree BY LILLIAN RUSSELL

The dance craze seems to have obsessed every one at the present time, and obsessed us so that many do not stop to think whether or not they are properly dressed before they are whirled onward to the strains of the waltz, one-step or other modern dances. In the first place, the young girl or woman should be certain that her blouse or walst shall be of sufficiently thin material. By this I do not mean transparent. If the blouse is of heavy material it increases the perspiration, and is uncomfortable for the wearer as well as for her partner. well as for her partner.

I noticed last summer that so many young girls went directly from the tennis court to the dance floor in the afternoon. They were already warm—in fact, overheated—and their tennis shoes maile a droll and clumsy appearance as they dance about. They may say that flat rubber-soled shoes are comfortable to dance in, but they are not pretty to look at and are injurious to the instep.

The next point to be considered is the proper underwear for dancing. From the same viewpoint as the thin waist, the garments next to the skin should be of thin, cool material. Dancing opens the porces and produces perspiration quicker than any outdoor exercise. That is why one should be more thinly clad in winter as well as in summer, but in winter as well as in summer, but in winter precaution must be taken as to wearing a sufficiently warm coat out of doors.

Some women see a dancing act on the stage and think it smart to copy the dress of the stage dancer because the latter is famous. There is, or should be, a great distinction between stage dresses and ballroom gowns.

A large hat should never be worn while dancing, and if the hat is small it should be free from any feathers, plumes or any garniture which might brush the face of her partner. For evening either a tight bonnet or no headdress at all only is proper.

Miss B. L.: I shall be glad to answer any questions and help you all I can if you will write and tell me what you wish to know. If you wish a personal reply send me a stamped addressed envelope. These letters are always answered promptly, but if you wish a reply through the column it will take about two weeks on account of the number of letters received for publication. Address me in care this paper.

Miss G. H.: Some people use eggs for a shampoo without adding anything to them. To do this break two eggs over the head and rub them thoroughly into the scalp. Phase the hair thoroughly in warm water. Here is a formula for an egg shampoo that is excellent: One stablespoon of listerine, three tablespoons of tineture of green soap, and the white of one egg. Mix this thoroughly. Wet the hair and scalp thoroughly with warm water, pour the shampoo mixture over the head and rub with the finger tips until a stiff lather is formed. Do this three times if the hair is heavy. This cleanses the scalp thoroughly. Be sure to rinse your hair thoroughly.

Miss F.: I have never heard of the compound you mention and cannot give you any information about it. If you will send me a stamped addressed envelope I shall be glad to send you the formula for hair tonic.

George: Hangnalls are usually caused from improper manicuring! A man certainly is not effeminate in having his nails manicured. All well groomed men have their nails manicured regularly, and if you would have yours manicured each week you would avoid the painful hangnails, for these are caused from the cuticle around the base of the nail becoming dry and cracking, causing the skin to peel down. They are painful sometimes. Cut them as closely as you can with a small pair of curved scissors. Apply a little peroxide.

The variety given to models developed in checked materials is very great. The costume illustrated here is developed in gray and green checked suitings, the short coat and tunic being the distinguishing features of the design. The skirt has a flounce of plaited green silk, and sleeves and underbodice match this silk. Four yards, 36 inches wide, are required for the trimming. Four yards of 54-inch checked material make the tunic and coat.
